Taney County Water Powers.

The Republican, and all Taney county, are more directly interested in congressional action authorizing the development of our dormant water powers than in all other questions to be affected by the coming election.

We hope to see a Republican legislature, and to see it elect a Republican U. S. senator who will work for the development of all Missouri waterpowers without tax, for they are as yet all undeveloped, and will so remain if a tax for the use of the water is to be imposed. Their development will make of Missouri one of the greatest manufacturing states in the Union.

A government report in proceedings before the house committee on agriculture last winter shows that on small rivers coming down the mountains at and south of Richmond, Va., there was developed and in operation 352,000 horsepower, with five times as much more to be developed. According to best estimates this development was saving the people of that region $7,000,000 a year, which with the development of the remaining power, would be increased to approximately $28,000,000, saving in the item of cost of power.

This has been accomplished under just such bills as that in the interest of the Standish proposition, which is supported by Senator Stone. It is estimated such measures have placed in that region $400,000,000 in electric power and manufacturing plants and structures for owners and employees. They have made a market for southern cotton and farm produce, given employment to southern labor and for a large tax revenue in a region much like all the Ozark region in southern Missouri, which is full of undeveloped waterpower, not only on White and James rivers, but on other streams, where congress has not authorized such development. As a consequence we are without manufacturing enterprises of note and the region is without electric railways.

If the Republicans are not to elect a senator from Missouri, Democrats can no better serve the Ozark region than to return Senator Stone to continue his efforts for the legislation in question. While the Republican has a higher opinion of Governor Folk than of Senator Stone, the latter will better serve our interests, since Folk, if correctly quoted, is against this legislation and will seek to prevent it if sent to the senate.

The Chicago Sunby Examiner of September 27th says: "Missouri learns to derive a perpetual income from her waterpower and at the same time save the government the expense of constructing the waterway through the rock region between Lakeport and Utica, is encouraging states to consider the matter of developing their waterpower. Gov. Folk, of Missouri, for instance, has appointed a commission to investigate the rivers of Missouri with a view to learning how many of them can be utilized for power purposes. The White, Meramec, Gasconade are expected to yield large incomes. The Missouri plan, like the Illinois plan, is to devote part of the revenue from the sale of waterpower to the deep waterway project. The commission appointed by Gov. Folk consists of Wm. K. Kavanaugh, St. Louis, president Lakes to Gulf Deep Waterway association, W. K. James, St. Joseph, L. M. Jones, president of the Missouri River Improvement association, Wm. H. Black, of Marshall, and L. H. Harling, of Brunswick, Missouri."

The trouble with this proposition is that there will be no revenue. If our waters are to be taxed for such a revenue they will not be developed. The Folk plan will bring no good to any person or section, and our powers will still be dormant. Besides, there is no need of the plan. Both Telford and Bryan have declared for bonding the government to develop inland navigation. If it is found that the Missouri river merits national development the government will provide the fund, and Stone will do as much for this improvement as will Folk, aiding us to secure both cheap power and river transportation.

We are reliably informed that some of the wealthiest men and largest power users in southwest Missouri have conditionally purchased from General Standish all his water-power sites on the James and White rivers in Stone and Taney counties, Missouri, with the condition in the deed that it shall lie in bank until congress authorizes their development without a water-power tax and time limit provision, when the deed is to be delivered and recorded. Such legislation not being obtained during the next or following congress, the deed is to be returned. Thus it will be seen that capitalists will not develop these powers under the Folk policy, so that it behooves Democrats who want our waterpowers developed to vote for the nomination of Senator Stone to succeed himself.

The management of the Springfield, Nixa & Southern railroad has been waited upon in the interest of Forsyth, and it is found to be the intention to build the line to Nixa, and not beyond that point unless the proposed water-power legislation goes through; but in that event the road will be extended to Forsyth, and thence to Lead Hill, Arkansas, from which place it will be certain to continue farther if requirements in Arkansas justify further extension, and we believe they do.

In consequence of "all the above and foregoing" we submit to the Democrats of Missouri or that it would be wise to retain Stone, if a Democrat must be returned to the senate, to labor for this legislation in which all Missouri, and the Ozark region especially, is so deeply interested, and not to replace him by Folk, who will labor to defeat it.

Road Taxes.

It is right that people should fear a heavy tax rate and should prevent taxes from becoming exorbitant. A certain amount of taxes, however, is necessary in order to provide for public institutions and to improve the country. A low tax rate does not necessarily mean a public saving—not the amount of money spent, but the judicious expenditure of it should be our position.

Road improvement should keep abreast with the growth of the state. No one internal improvement is more essential to the prosperity and advancement of the state than good highways. One reason the roads are not improved is because the people fear they cannot afford it.

It must, however, be borne in mind that no road official, no matter how efficient he may be, can build roads without funds. Permit me to quote from a letter of one of our county highway engineers: "We have some very attractive scenery in our county but the only safe way to see it is in an old-fashioned farm wagon or by alrship. When I first came to this county, I could not understand why people with such good road material at hand had no better roads. This was 25 years ago, and at present the roads are worse than they were then. The reason is plain from the following figures:—

Total mileage of roads, about 2,000. Road fund $1,994.75 or quite one dollar per mile for road maintenance.

When fault is found with public road work, the fact remains that the officials having the work directly in charge frequently labor under great disadvantages, and are often not to be criticized.

The remedy for bad roads is for everybody to help make them better, not to obstruct. Good supervision with a reasonable amount of funds for expenditure will make good roads.

The proper expenditure upon public roads of enough funds to gradually bring the highway system to a better condition and then to maintain it is money saved and the people can afford it.
